CEO, Griffin Capital. “We hope to increase the number of survivors by supporting Stand Up To Cancer, a groundbreaking movement that, in less than a decade, has generated pledges of nearly $500 million and is accelerating innovative cancer research that will get new therapies to patients quickly and save lives now.”

Breast cancer is one of the most common forms of cancer in women, and the employees of Griffin Capital are raising awareness and supporting Stand Up To Cancer in a variety of ways, including casual pink Fridays, running challenges, office decorating contests and a Flash Match in which Griffin Capital will match the donations offered by its employees. Griffin Capital will also be sending out weekly emails to educate employees about breast cancer.

Griffin Capital’s Breast Cancer Awareness campaign occurs as part of the Griffin Charitable Initiative, an expansion of Griffin Capital’s longstanding commitment to give back to the communities in which its employees live and work, as well as a call-to-action to Griffin Capital employees to expand their charitable involvement. “We are proud to support cancer research and in particular Stand Up To Cancer as a key part of the Griffin Charitable Initiative,” said David Rupert, President, Griffin Capital. “This terrible disease has personally impacted so many of our 180 employees’ families across the country, and we are proud to dedicate our time and money to fund cancer research and help find a cure.”
